

4. Example problem

A child of mass m stands at one end of a boat of mass M and length L , stationary relative to the shore. He then walks to the opposite end of the boat. Supposed there is no friction between the boat and water. How far does the boat move, and in which direction?